Guidelines - Converting IPYNB to HTML files

I. Download the Project File

In Google Colab, navigate to File in the top menu.

Select Download, followed by Download .ipynb, in order to download your project file in the .ipynb format.

This file is meant for personal use by zareh.vazquez@sap.com only.
Sharing or publishing the contents in part or full is liable for legal action.

II. Open a New Google Colab Notebook

Go to File in the top menu.

Choose New Notebook to create a new Google Colab notebook.

This file is meant for personal use by zareh.vazquez@sap.com only.
Sharing or publishing the contents in part or full is liable for legal action.

III. Upload your Project File

In the new notebook, locate the Folders section and click the icon.

Press the Upload sign (as shown in the image) to upload the project IPYNB file.

This file is meant for personal use by zareh.vazquez@sap.com only.
Sharing or publishing the contents in part or full is liable for legal action.

IV. Copy the Path of the Project File.

Click the Three Dot Icon next to the Project File.

Select Copy path.

This file is meant for personal use by zareh.vazquez@sap.com only.
Sharing or publishing the contents in part or full is liable for legal action.

V. Execute the following code to convert the file:

```
%%shell
jupyter nbconvert --to html "<Path_of_the_notebook>"
```

In this case

```
[2]
%%shell
jupyter nbconvert --to html "/content/Week7_GA_NLP_Mid_term_Project_Solution_notebook.ipynb"
```

```
[NbConvertApp] Converting notebook /content/Week7_GA_NLP_Mid_term_Project_Solution_notebook.ipynb to html
[NbConvertApp] Writing 301440 bytes to /content/Week7_GA_NLP_Mid_term_Project_Solution_notebook.html
```

VI. View the converted File

Click the Refresh Folder icon (shown in image below) to see the HTML file created. This HTML file can be downloaded and submitted as required.

This file is meant for personal use by zareh.vazquez@sap.com only.
Sharing or publishing the contents in part or full is liable for legal action.